Pearl's Night Out – What's it all about?

Pearl is raising the red quota in Sheffield this February with a British Heart Foundation fundraising pop-up art gala at one of her favourite pubs. On February 9th the Rutland Arms will play host to 'Pearl's Night Out' so drop in and get to know Wildago's painted Pearl as she sips on bubbly with her friends and supports a good cause. You can't miss her. She'll be the larger-than-life, striking redhead standing at the bar in her signature black gloves and a smashing red ball gown. And you might end up having your photo taken with her!

Here's how it works. You show up anytime after 6:00 pm dressed in red. There is no admission fee but do be sure to wear something red or a photo with Pearl will be mandatory. She charges a small fee for this service, all for charity of course.

Because February is National Heart Month, Pearl has chosen the British Heart Foundation as her pet charity for the event. Prizes will be awarded for the best red outfits so use your imagination!

The event organisers are Ardal Events (students from Venture Matrix, a work-based learning scheme that aims to improve the enterprise skills and develop the employability of students at Sheffield Hallam University).

The Painted World of Wildago is a carefree, whimsical place that is funny, full of life and sometimes a little strange. But it is never, ever dull. Wildago (or Wilda Goyetche) paints lively scenarios featuring Pearl - an elegant (if at times scatty) glamour queen - and her best friend Smokey - a mischievous minx. There is also a dapper bloke called Edmund who is quiet and unassuming but very accomplished. And of course who could forget his nosy newshound, Todd the Dog who writes a gripping blog?

Redhead at the Ruddy, Wildago's first exhibition of 2012, runs from January 23rd until March 18th allowing you to see the many faces of Pearl displayed at the Rutland Arms.
